Why Before the After

In my personal life, as well as career, I have seen friends and loved ones pass on without leaving more than a basic will to outline their wishes for their assets....but nothing for their service, legacy, obituary or history. In a conversation with a friend over such frustrations I scribbled on a piece of paper “Besides a Will...what is needed when someone dies” and below that formed a list that became Before the After.

My goal is to keep Before the After affordable for everyone to outline their final wishes for those who will carry them out in their memory and honor. I appreciate your interest, and I look forward to facilitating your Before the After.

Before the After Topics

Obituary

Develop an obituary that tells your story, whether it is short and concise or a longer, more creative approach. Guidelines aid in creating an obituary that suits you.

Funeral, Memorial

Creative and thought-provoking planning guide aids in outlining the type of preparation, services, memorials, burial and cemetery marker you envision.

Lasting Legacy

Consider leaving a lasting legacy through community based memorials, scholarship, endowment, personal bequests and Letters of Love.

Health History

Use this form to compile a health history of ancestors, providing your family's next generations with this important information.

Medical Directives

Prepare your wishes for medical decisions in the event you are unable to convey these directives on your own. Power of Attorney forms and supporting documents are provided by state of residency as well.

Organ, Tissue, Eye, Body Donation

Using National or State approved directives and registries to outline your options for organ or tissue donation. Save or improve a life with your choice.

Plus Proven Planning Tips!

Planning Workshops

Will and Designations

A planning form for a Will to get you thinking about your property and possessions. Planning Sessions and an attorney can be used to finalize your wishes.

Guardianship

Identifying and planning the designation of another as guardian of a person or estate to continue your parenting or care-giving path for dependent relatives or individuals.

Workshops

Informative and entertaining workshops cover all topics of Before the After and require up to four hours to complete.

Public Planning Workshop

Attend a Planning Workshop near you. Website calendar assists in finding a location near you to enhance your Before the After.

Private Planning Workshop

Host a Personal Planning Workshop. Facilitator leads your group through the completion of a Before the After Packet with a more personalized experience.
